Salmon Falls. About the 1st of August, 1865, Thomas B. Fitzhugh and Joseph Douglas left the Salmon Falls Ferry and went to Rock Creek Station of the O. S. Co., about forty miles. The day prior the Indians had made a raid and run off four head of beef cattle from the command under charge of Lieut. L. Curry, who was company that the stream is navigable for the there with sixty or seventy soldiers. They distance af one hundred and thirty milesalso stole four horses from Mr. Archer at the Station. Lieut. Curry and twenty soldiers followed. They overtook them; the Indians saw them coming killed two beeves and ran to the brush. Lieut. Curry surrounded the brush but would not go into it, and afterward withdrew twelve men to act as his body guard leaving eight to guard the brush, in consequence of which the Indians escaped. and the gallant Lieutenant returned with four horses and two head of cattle, but "HALO SAWASH," the following night the Indians Lieut. Curry for soldiers to go with them to are in demand.

"catchee" Mr. Indians and after some "WAR-WAR" [orderded a detachment of eight privates under command of a Sergeant to accompany them and furnished horses for all When they arrived at the head of Cañon Creek, six miles from the Indians, the soldiers tired and hungry swore they would go no further and said they did not believe they would find a d-d Indian in the country, and if they, did nothing would be done, but make a second failure like Lieut. Curry's first campaign. After a while Fitzhugh, Joseph Douglas, Mr. Archer and one of the O. S. Co. started ahead telling the soldiers to go to the devil-but three of them supposing the best way of following that beneficent wish was to go with Fitzhugh & Co., eventually followed. After going about six miles they came on the Indian camp, but the party had got separated and Tom Fitzhugh and Joe Douglas came upon the Indians alone, fifteen in number. The balance of the party did not get there until too late, although as soon as they heard the firing they hurried to the scene of action. Tom and Joe followed the Indians closely, the Indians making for the brush. About twenty paces from the brush they killed the only Indian who had a rifle, 41] Rocky Bar, Alturas County, I. This ended the fight, as the Indians took advantage to get off. They killed and scalped three; more may have been killed as

Over four hundred wagons have already crossed the Ferry at Salmon Falls. Yours Respectfully. ALDEBARAN.
